No problem. I understand. It would be extremely helpful to us if we could still move forward on that small investment in our bank. Perhaps we can talk more about it next week. Happy New Year. Talk to you soon

Andy,

We are going to move forward with another issuing bank for the personal loan installment product. I'll share the reasons when we talk next. Mostly because we got materially better economic terms than we were expecting and we were concerned with the uncertainty with your regulators.

On the positive side, we want to move forward with a second product sooner than we originally anticipated. We want to start working with Medallion on a line of credit product in Q3 '17. We would consider making an equity investment in Medallion Bank under similar terms we discussed for the launch of this product.

I'm hoping this will make a smoother process for all, while still allowing us to work together in 2017. I'm free to talk this week or we can talk when I'm back in the office next week.

Regards,
Jeff

I spoke to Rodgin Cohen again yesterday. He will prepare an agreement for you to buy small percentage of our bank. He and I plan to send something to the regulators in the next 10 days or so telling them what our intent is.
